A simple music player that enables you to listen to your favorite tunes in random order. Create your playlists, let the software choose what to play Shuffle Music Player supports most of the common audio file types, such as MP3, FLAC, OGG, MOD, XM and WAV. You can easily create a playlist by loading an entire music directory, and optionally scanning subfolders. Any changes you make in the source folder can reflect in your playlist, if you set the program to rescan directories at startup. You have a selection of skins to choose from in order to customize your media player, including multiple colors and patterns. You can preview the layout of the software with the new skin before applying the change. The text color can also be modified in order to fit to the new skin or to be more visible. Slim interface Shuffle Music Player features a slim and neat interface and when minimized it goes directly to the system tray, not before displaying a quick message to let you know it didn't stop playing. The complete menu, including the access to playlist, is a right click away, in the context box. You can view the progression of the playback in the main window, along with the name of the song currently rendered and the album cover, if you chose to display it. Shuffle Music Player is freeware for personal and commercial use. Hey everyone, after a long hiatus I am back and even more active than before. I just returned home yesterday and am currently still working through some stuff but I did get some good news. I was able to create a fully functioning converter (submarine to bunker) version of the game. So you can now play submarine and get the same upgrades, which is way better than before. I am also working on making some other parts of the game be sound decoded for easier playing on emulators. I have made some work in progress videos. Please enjoy. It seems a bit small. It doesn't have a whole lot of depth. But if you like simulated submarine games, I think it's worth checking out. I really like how you made it so you can use the submersible to investigate and create surface structures. Can you make those structures collapsible? Does the submarine still drift while submerged? Also, with the submarine moving around, you're going to have to add depth controls to simulate that effect (increase or decrease depth or do something that'll require you to push the sub down
