LIKE A WALK ON THE MOON Mercury just got very lucky, or maybe its just in great planetary alignment – anything's possible these days. The July 13 Mercury transit, or "walk on the moon" as it's known, occurred as a very close (with Mercury appearing to pass very nearly directly below the moon) and very bright, as measured in apparent brightness. The moon will be at its largest angular size, or "full moon." Mercury is the closest planet to the sun, with a distance of roughly 30 million kilometers, or 200 times that of the Earth-moon distance. Mercury's diameter is about 4.8 million kilometers or about 30 times the diameter of the moon. While a very close view, a transit of Mercury will be difficult to observe without either the aid of binoculars or a larger telescope. But, if you can risk shooting the moon, this is a great one to observe. There is a "penumbra" surrounding the moon, which is the result of the varying illumination of the moon by the sun and reflected by the sun's atmosphere. It's not as visible as the moon itself, but you can expect to see the penumbra on the shadowed portions of the moon. It may give the moon some irregularity in appearance, and it may be of another color than that of the moon. The moon and the sun are both bright enough to see without a telescope, but the sun is also very large, 14 times larger than the moon. The transit of Mercury is often referred to as "an Earth-moon-sun triple transit," and it could be a fine opportunity to observe it. The moon rises around 11:00 pm. Washington, D.C. time and will be at it's greatest angular size between 3:30 and 3:45 am on July 14. There is less than a half day difference between the moon and Mercury. The moon is right at the cusp of being a "

I tried to have a clean uninstall of MS Office because it does not install the programs in the right manner. I only removed their application files, but after that removed the folders too, but after a reboot there are still hidden files and the installer files. (Office 2007 and 2010) Is there anyway to remove all the files too? Thx for your help! I have installed the program, but it crashes after the blue screen. Never experienced this with other programs. I have not tried many programs, so I don't know if others have had this problem. Thought I would share this.
