in the foregoing case the evidence shows that the car occupied by the plaintiff was stuck in the mud and the defendant, in the exercise of ordinary care, could have seen it was stuck and would have avoided striking it but instead defendant drove his car into and against the plaintiff's car. In concluding that no negligence was shown on the part of the defendant, the court stated at page 444: "Although the automobile of plaintiff was stuck in the mud, it is a matter of common knowledge that a traveler following a wagon track along a dike in a damp climate is bound to expect the wheels to slip. The fact that his wheels slipped does not make him guilty of negligence." The court, citing Moller v. Prussing, supra, held that a pecuniary loss alone was not enough to show actionable negligence. *336 Pecuniary Loss. The court was not in error in denying compensation to the plaintiff upon its holding that the evidence failed to show any negligence on the part of the defendant. In its findings, the Industrial Commission found that the plaintiff recovered judgment against the defendant in a former proceeding. The Industrial Commission found that the plaintiff "fully recovered for his injuries under his judgment against the defendant," and that "none of the grounds for the allowance of a new trial or for a change of the judgment from the former judgment exists." The case of Miller v. Blount Bros. Lumber Co., 232 Ala. 236, 167 So. 447, presents a different factual situation. In that case, the defendant, a Republic (; Românul Popular Român) is a country in southeastern Europe. A bilingual country, it is composed of two homogeneous groups: Romanian-speaking Moldovans who live in Moldova proper and bilingual Romanians living in the region of Romaniaâ€™s Moldova. After the 1940-1944 Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact, Romania was a communist Soviet republic. Romania later adopted a neutral course in the Cold War, joined the NATO alliance in 2004, became a member of the European Union in 2007 and started pursuing membership of the European Union in 2004.

Numerous Romanians emigrated to Western Europe in the 19th century, notably to Romania. Many Romanians as an ethnic group are found in Northern, Central and Eastern Europe. . In 2005, Romania received full membership in the NATO Military Alliance while remaining outside the EU's military institutions. It is a member of the Union for the Mediterranean. IRINA-L. YULIA-G. NATHALIA-R. VICTOR-B. KRISTINA-K.
